Two day workshop on "CAD Software Basics and Applications"

Date: 24th and 25th July, 2015

Place: Room 212, Electrical Building (tentatively)

Time: on 24th : 2.30 to 4.30 pm, On 25th 9.30 AM to 4.30 AM

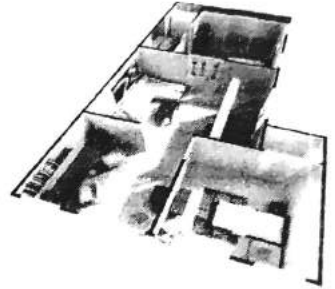

About the workshop:

Computer-aided drafting (CAD) is the use of computer systems to assist in the creation, modification, analysis, or optimization of a design. CAD software is used to increase the productivity of the designer, improve the quality of design, improve communications through documentation, and to create a database for manufacturing. CAD output is often in the form of electronic files for print, machining, or other manufacturing operations.

CAD is an important industrial art extensively used in many applications, including automotive, shipbuilding, and aerospace industries, industrial and architectural design, prosthetics, and many more. CAD is also widely used to produce computer animation for special effects in movies, advertising and technical manuals, often called DCC digital content creation.

By looking in to the wide opportunity of CAD applications in wide area of Civil Engineering, Society of Civil Engineering in collaboration with Khodiyar Cad Centre, Vidhyanagar is organizing a two day workshop on "Cad Software: Basics and Application".

Objective of the said workshop is to spread awareness of CAD related software and its future possibilities in civil engineering.

About the Workshop

Research Methodology & Thesis Writing plays vital role for research work. Current Research Work & Recent tremendous technical advances in processing power, storage capacity, and interconnectivity is creating unprecedented quantities of digital data. Data mining, the science of extracting useful knowledge from such huge data repositories, has emerged as a young and interdisciplinary field in computer science. Data mining techniques have been widely applied to problems in Industry, Science, Engineering and Government, and it is widely believed that data mining will have profound impact on our society. The growing consensus that data mining can bring real value has led to an explosion in demand for novel data mining technologies and for researchers who are trained in data mining, who have an understanding of data mining techniques, can apply them to real-life problems, and are trained for research and development of new data mining methods.

Contents of the Workshop

The objective of this workshop is to provide an in-depth technical foundation to the development and implementation of sound Business intelligence, data mining strategies & Research Methodology. In particular, it will provide participants with the knowledge, tools and resources required to meet the needs of the "Technical Measures" within the organizations knowledge management framework. This workshop is suitable for undergraduates as well as post graduate students, research fellow, academicians, IT professionals, experienced statistician, business analyst and functional managers. It includes hands-on sessions on the mentioned topics using data mining tools like WEKA, XL-Miner, Tanagra, Data Preparator, originlab, R-GUI, Sipina, Rapid Miner, Orange & Data Warehouse Creation, Processing and Browsing.

1 Workshop Purpose

The Internet of Things (IoT) is the network of physical objects or "things" embedded with electronics, software, sensors and connectivity to enable it to achieve greater value and service by exchanging data with the manufacturer, operator and/or other connected devices. Each thing is uniquely identifiable through its embedded computing system but is able to interoperate within the existing Internet infrastructure.

Internet of Things is emerged as latest trend in research scholars, field practitioners and the industry personal. To work with the Internet of Things specific setup is required. It is also observed that research scholars related with this emerging field are facing problems regarding how to setup and how go through with advance security methodologies and tools available for that. Topics to be covered during the session clear the research scope and possibilities in IOTs security – Software Perspective.

Objectives:

On completion of the workshop, participants will be able to apply tools, security architecture model for IOTs and related technology to:

1. To make use of the concepts of Internet of Things.
2. To understand the need of Asymmetric and Symmetric Cryptography
Internet of Things.

Dear Sir/ Madam,

We are very pleased to announce our Twentieth Two-week ISTE Short Term Training Programme (STTP) on "Technical Communication" from 08th October to 05th December 2015. It is being conducted by IIT Bombay under the National Mission on Education through ICT (MHRD, GoI) in collaboration with the Indian Society of Technical Education (ISTE).

This STTP is unique in the sense that it targets all teachers who face these questions in their interaction with students:

1. Do you feel the quality of project reports or thesis submitted by students leaves a lot to be desired?
2. Do you see that your students are able to defend their work among peers, but are unable to express it well in an interview or to a general audience?
3. Do you think your students must carry out even small projects with a rigour expected of a scientific approach?
4. Do you observe your students have scant or no regard to ethics of technical or workplace communication?
5. Do you teach a "Communication skills" course for STEM disciplines, and felt the lack of good resources?

If you answered 'Yes' to any of the above questions, and you wish to try and change that situation for good, then this course may be for you.

About the STTP on Technical Communication:

The trained faculty can potentially use contents from this course for (i) teaching Undergraduate/Postgraduate (UG/PG) courses in Technical Communication, Scientific Communication or equivalent and (ii) training project students to communicate their research or development work to various audience. On successful completion of this program they will be able to organise, comprehend, write, and present, short and long forms of any technical work in the framework of the Scientific Method. They will also be able to communicate this content within the widely accepted current norms. In this process, they will gain relevant examples in their own domain of knowledge, and be able to use those, along with the general illustrations given here, to train students in the craft of technical communication.

Who is eligible?

- * Any faculty member from Science, Technology, Engineering, Mathematics (STEM) departments or from Humanities, Social Sciences, and Management disciplines (who conduct communications courses for STEM students).
- * Science teachers teaching PG courses equivalent to M.Sc level or UG courses in engineering (BE/BTech).
- * Faculty from polytechnic institutes
- * Teachers registered in a Masters or a Ph.D program, during their employment as a teacher in one of the above categories.

The STTP on Technical Communication will be conducted in the blended-MOOC format. It will consist of the following parts:

1. Online Component: IITBombayX (MOOCs) and Moodle (8 Oct to 11 Nov 2015) : 5 Weeks

Registered participants will listen to online video lectures and complete assessments in IITBombayX and Moodle platforms. They will be evaluated by giving grades for this portion. The online platform has a provision for conducting a discussion forum for clarifying doubts with IIT Bombay faculty.

2.Face-to-face workshop (30 Nov to 05 Dec 2015) : 6 Days

Participants will assemble in a registered local college that is authorised to be a Remote Center for IIT Bombay's Technical Communication STTP. Sessions will be conducted by IIT Bombay faculty from IIT Bombay via the internet. The schedule of the workshop is 9:30 am to 4:30 pm Monday to Saturday. Participants will be able to interact live through this audio-video link with IIT Bombay faculty. Participants will work individually and in groups to carry out tutorial exercises in various aspects of communication, with live feedback from IIT Bombay and the local Course Coordinators.

Please note that all the activities of this STTP will be done exclusively at the 119 coordinating remote centers, across the country.

Course Fee:

This STTP is conducted in a self finance mode for the remote centers. Teachers who wish to register, need to pay Rs.

Who Should/Can Attend ?

1. Do you feel the quality of project reports or thesis submitted by students leaves a lot to be desired ?
2. Do you see that your students are able to defend their work among peers, but are unable to express it well in an interview or to a general audience ?
3. Do you think your students must carry out even small projects with a rigour expected of a scientific approach ?
4. Do you observe your students have scant or no regard to ethics of technical or workplace communication ?
5. Do you teach a “Communication skills” course for STEM disciplines, and felt the lack of good resources ?

If you answered ‘Yes’ to any of the above questions, and you wish to try and change that situation for good, then this course may be for you.

Who is eligible?

- Any faculty member from STEM departments, or from Humanities, Social Sciences, and Management disciplines (who conduct communications courses for STEM students).
- Science teachers teaching PG courses equivalent to M.Sc level or UG courses in engineering (BE/BTech).
- Faculty from polytechnic institutes
- Teachers registered in a Masters or a Ph.D program, during their employment as a teacher in one of the above categories.

Who is not eligible?

- Teachers of B.Sc, B.A, BBA, or equivalent, and students/research scholars are welcome to listen to the lectures and participate in the workshop tutorials, subject to availability of seats, but are not eligible to get a certificate from ISTE.
- Teachers who are not employed in any college at the time of the STTP, are not eligible.

Background to the T10kT Short Term Training Programmes

In 2009, IIT Bombay started conducting Teacher Training Programmes to engage 1,000 teachers at a time, in subject specific training STTPs of two weeks duration. In 2013 the project was scaled further, to train up to 10,000 teachers (T10KT) simultaneously, using 353 specially equipped centers at colleges across India. These remote centers are connected to IIT Bombay e-studio (which has facilities to conduct high quality live audio-video sessions,) using the A-VIEW software, developed by Amrita University. The main advantage for the participating teachers is that they are able to get a high quality training near to their place of work or stay, which is particularly appreciated by teachers who have significant family commitments that prohibit outstation travel for long periods.

To further enhance the learning experience, some STTPs are now being offered in an online-cum-face-to-face blended mode. The participants first undergo a learning through video lectures and online interactive assessments through IIT Bombay's MOOCs (Massive Open Online Courses) platform called as IITBombayX, which is in partnership with edX. A paper on this blended model is available at <http://www.it.iitb.ac.in/nmeict/pdfs/MOOCs.pdf>. This will also train teachers for adopting the use of MOOCs in general.

When the participants attend the face-to-face component of the STTP, after the online learning, they are already half prepared with the content. This makes the workshop tutorials more effective; this is equivalent to a flipped-classroom approach. Since part of the content is already available online, the teachers can later use that material to teach their students in a similar flipped-classroom method, where the students listen to the lectures online, and attend their class to carry out tutorial assignments. IITBombayX is free for anyone to register and to participate in the courses.

STTP format

The STTP on Technical Communication will be conducted in the blended-MOOC format. It will consist of the following parts:

- 1. Online Component: IITBombayX (MOOCs) and Moodle (8 Oct to 11 Nov 2015) : 5 Weeks: Registered participants will listen to online video lectures and complete assessments in IITBombayX and Moodle platforms. They will be evaluated by giving grades for this portion. The online platform has a provision for conducting a discussion forum for clarifying doubts with IIT Bombay faculty.
- 2. Face-to-face workshop (30 Nov to 5 Dec 2015): 6 Days Participants will assemble in a local college that is authorised to be a Remote Center for IIT Bombay's Technical Communication STTP. Sessions will be conducted by IIT Bombay faculty from IIT Bombay via the internet. Participants will be able to interact live through this audio-video link with IIT Bombay faculty. Participants will work individually and in groups to carry out tutorial exercises in various aspects of communication, with live feedback from IIT Bombay and the local Course Coordinators.
- 3. Post workshop assignment: Participants will need to submit online assignments after the completion of the face-to-face workshop. This will again be a graded evaluation.

Duration and Venue

The online component will be spread across 5 weeks and can be done by the participants at their own convenient venue.

The face-to-face component will be conducted at the Remote Centers and will consist of 6 days.

- 1. Online Component: 8 Oct to 11 Nov 2015 (5 weeks):
A set of lectures and assignments will be posted every week. The effort expected from the participants is about 7 to 8 hours per week. The online component can be attempted at any time of the day from any computer with Internet access. About 2 to 3 hours in this weekly work will be carried out offline, and submitted online.

2. Face-to-face workshop: 30 Nov to 5 Dec 2015 (6 days):

The schedule of the workshop is 9:30 am to 4:30 pm Monday to Saturday (approx 6 hours per day excluding lunch break). The participants must be present in the center they have registered.

ISTE Certification Criteria

ISTE will provide the STTP completion certificate only for eligible faculty (read 'Who can attend?')

- Additionally, the certificate will be issued only to participants who get a minimum grade equivalent to 40% in every assignment posted during the online component and post-workshop.
- It is also essential that the participants attend all the days of the face-to-face workshop.

Course Contents

Scientific method and its relationship to technical communication; Listening and note taking; Reading skills and summarising; Writing skills: methods, organisation, summary; Presentation skills: slide content, non-verbal; Interview and Group Discussion skills; Ethics; Gender and cultural issues; Internet communication.

While this course will be conducted in English, what it will not specifically address is training to improve English or Technical English language skills. But what will be covered is universal, and can be applied to any language one is comfortable with.

About The Institute

CSPIT is a pioneer institute of CHARUSAT. The institute offers UG, PG and PhD programs in EE, ME, CE, IT, EC and Civil Engineering. The institute is established with a view to promote excellence in engineering education and to prepare the young talent to meet challenges of engineering and technology.

About The Department

Department of Electrical Engineering offers UG, PG (Power System) and PhD programs. It is equipped with high-tech laboratories for power system protection, electrical machines, PE & Drives, high voltage, PLC & Instrumentation and DSP. The department is also having a simulation lab with the highly professional software such as Power Factory, CYME, MiPower, PSCAD, MATLAB/Simulink, PSIM, PSPICE and SKM Power Tool.

About STTP

The electricity is the most essential and vital ingredient for the growth of the nation in the social, industrial, commercial, and agricultural sectors. The growth of power sector at a rapid rate plays a crucial role in the economic progress of any country.

The Indian Power Sector has taken a quantum leap in electricity generation from a mere 1345 MW to 185 GW. The reforms, restructuring of power sector and private participation are all the outcomes of the Electricity Act 2003. They lead to improved quality and reliability of power supply and satisfy the ever-increasing demand for electrical energy consumption.

To operate the power system in a reliable manner, the protective relays need to be provided and coordinated with each other at different locations in power the system. For the proper operation of the relays, the correct calculation of the fault current is required. The computer aided short circuit analysis programs are required to calculate the value of the fault current at different operating conditions.

The occurrence the fault is the major cause to make the system transiently unstable. The transient stability is affected by the types of the faults, locations of the faults, clearing time of the faults and operating conditions.

Scope of STTP

The main objective of this program is to enhance the knowledge of the participants with the recent trends in emerging power system operation and control including the fundamental aspects of the short circuit analysis, optimal power flow, dynamics and stability, grid integration of renewable energy sources and contingency analysis. This course will cover an in-depth discussion and deliberations on the various challenges which will be faced in the future by the electrical grid for their operations, management and control. The course will also focus on the possible remedies to these challenges. The broad contents of the program are:

- Power flow analysis
- Economic dispatch ,Optimal power flow analysis and Security constrained optimal power flow analysis
- Optimization techniques

- Artificial Intelligent application in power system
- Renewable energy
- Short circuit analysis
- Power system dynamics and stability analysis
- D-FACTS technology

The eminent professors, researchers, designers and engineers contributing in these areas will deliver the lectures during the program and share their experience and expertise with the participants. The course will benefit to the participants from academics, R&D institutions, utility engineers, research scholars and students.

Registration Fees

Academia	Rs. 750/-
Industry/ R&D Organizations	Rs. 1000/-

1. Workshop on scientific writing:

All faculty members of RPCP are involved as project supervisors for M.Pharm dissertation projects. It is desirable / essential that research carried out as part of M.Pharm programme as well as Ph.D. programme gets published as research papers. One of the constraints associated with research paper writing is non-availability of focused approach due to involvement of faculty in routine teaching- learning as well as administrative work. In addition, it is also desirable to provide guidance to faculty members with reference to various facets of research paper publication.

So, it is proposed to organize a workshop where faculty members can learn the skills of quality publication. Our plan is to call two to three experts as speakers and rest of the time will be devoted for actual paper writing by faculty members. One of the outcomes of the proposed workshop will be submission of at least one research paper by each faculty member in a journal having impact factor of minimum 0.5. Submission will be done on/or before the last day of the workshop. Each faculty member will submit the proof of research paper submitted. Research paper submitted will be based on research work carried out at RPCP. Faculty members will remain present in the institute throughout the duration of workshop.

2. Short term training programme in Entrepreneurship:

To imbibe the meaning of the term entrepreneurship, a dedicated training is required. In addition, at RPCP there are some more specific reasons to train faculty members for entrepreneurship. These reasons are enumerated here.

- B.Pharm curriculum has a course titled "Entrepreneurship for Pharma Professionals with total 9 credits divided in to three components: Theory (3 credits), Practical (3 credits) and Project (3 credits). Theory and practical components are conducted by the faculty members of RPCP and IIIM. Whereas project which is a Business Plan preparation is conducted by RPCP faculty members. A group of students is given to faculty member for guiding the project i.e. preparation of business plan. This requires training of faculty members.

- All faculty members of RPCP are involved in the research as project supervisors for M.Pharm dissertation projects and some for the PhD research projects. The research project generally ends up with a thesis, research articles, presentations and in some cases a patent. It is desirable to add a new dimension to the research carried out / to be carried out. This dimension is to find out market potential of the research, which may lead to innovation-based entrepreneurship. This too requires training in entrepreneurship.
 - Faculty members need to think like an intrapreneur. It is also need of time, since he / she is involved/ may get involved in consultancy projects and related activities. This is possible when some minimum essential training is provided.

Enclosure

1. Workshop on scientific writing:

All faculty members of RPCP are involved as project supervisors for M.Pharm dissertation projects. It is desirable / essential that research carried out as part of M.Pharm programme as well as Ph.D. programme gets published as research papers. One of the constraints associated with research paper writing is non-availability of focused approach due to involvement of faculty in routine teaching- learning as well as administrative work. In addition, it is also desirable to provide guidance to faculty members with reference to various facets of research paper publication.

So, it is proposed to organize a workshop where faculty members can learn the skills of quality publication. Our plan is to call two to three experts as speakers and rest of the time will be devoted for actual paper writing by faculty members. One of the outcomes of the proposed workshop will be submission of at least one research paper by each faculty member in a journal having impact factor of minimum 0.5. Submission will be done on/or before the last day of the workshop. Each faculty member will submit the proof of research paper submitted. Research paper submitted will be based on research work carried out at RPCP. Faculty members will remain present in the institute throughout the duration of workshop.

2. Short term training programme in Entrepreneurship:

To imbibe the meaning of the term entrepreneurship, a dedicated training is required. In addition, at RPCP there are some more specific reasons to train faculty members for entrepreneurship. These reasons are enumerated here.

- B.Pharm curriculum has a course titled "Entrepreneurship for Pharma Professionals with total 9 credits divided in to three components: Theory (3 credits), Practical (3 credits) and Project (3 credits). Theory and practical components are conducted by the faculty members of RPCP and IIIM. Whereas project which is a Business Plan preparation is conducted by RPCP faculty members. A group of students is given to faculty member for guiding the project i.e. preparation of business plan. This requires training of faculty members.

- All faculty members of RPCP are involved in the research as project supervisors for M.Pharm dissertation projects and some for the PhD research projects. The research project generally ends up with a thesis, research articles, presentations and in some cases a patent. It is desirable to add a new dimension to the research carried out / to be carried out. This dimension is to find out market potential of the research, which may lead to innovation-based entrepreneurship. This too requires training in entrepreneurship.
 - Faculty members need to think like an intrapreneur. It is also need of time, since he / she is involved/ may get involved in consultancy projects and related activities. This is possible when some minimum essential training is provided.

S S BHATNAGAR MEMORIAL LECTURE SERIES – INAUGURAL LECTURE

Date: 09-Jan-2016

Venue: Conference hall, PDPIAS

Expert: Professor Roop Malik, TIFR

Seminar topic: Tiny Machines, Big Tasks

Category: Skill development, research methodology, interdisciplinary research

Number of participants: 71 students, 7 research scholars, 29 faculty members (total = 107)

The inaugural lecture of SS Bhatnagar memorial lecture was delivered by Professor Roop Malik, Associate Professor, Tata Institute of Fundamental Research, Mumbai. He has unique set of skills and unique background of Ph.D. in physics and post-doctorate in Biology.

Dr. Malik gave an interesting talk on Molecular Motors – specifically the cytoskeleton and transport proteins in the cells. He termed them tiny machines who carry out huge amount of work at Biological level, without the aid of molecular motors normal cellular functions would cease. He highlighted the structure, function and the importance of molecular motors like kinesin and dynein. He used very simple terminologies and examples to explain the phenomenon. He also showed his work with laser beam of the optical trap he built for studying these proteins/molecular motors. Dr. Malik also shared interesting information about the use of ATP as energy by these molecular motors, his various hypotheses which try to explain the functioning of these tiny machines in the cell.

Dr. Malik concluded his lecture by briefing about his gear model of the transport proteins. After the lecture students, research students and faculty were given a chance to interact with Dr. Malik.

Dear All,

You might be aware that we, at CHARUSAT, are going to host a lecture series in the memory of a renowned and visionary Indian scientist, Sir Shanti Swaroop Bhatnagar. He was the founder director general of the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research (CSIR) and also the first chairman of the University Grant Commission (UGC). A chemist by profession, Sir Bhatnagar was deeply involved in solving several key problems related to chemical and petrochemical industries. His scientific contributions had a very large impact on the well-being of our society. Most of the national research laboratories that we have today in our country were established under his supervision and guidance. He played a major role in building the India's scientific and technological infrastructure after independence. In order to honor his contributions and achievements in Indian science, CSIR instituted an award "Shanti Swaroop Bhatnagar award" for science and technology that is conferred to Indian scientists who has contributed significantly in various branches of science and engineering. This award is considered to be the most esteemed and prestigious in Indian interdisciplinary science and was first conferred in 1958.

The lecture series that we are hosting will have speakers from various fields of science and engineering and who are recipients of the prestigious SS Bhatnagar award. The inauguration of this lecture series is being organized to be on 8th and 9th January, 2016. Prof. Roop Mallik, Department of Biological Sciences, TIFR, Mumbai is going to inaugurate the lecture series and spend the two days with us interacting with the students and faculty members. He will be talking to us on "Tiny Machines, Big Tasks". The abstract of his lecture and a brief CV of his are attached for your perusal. We believe that this initiative will have a good impact on the CHARUSAT family and encourage us to be productive researchers. Your cooperation and presence on this occasion is very crucial to make this event successful. Therefore, I would request you to block your calendar for those two days and make the event a grand success. An agenda detailing various programs, venue and time will be communicated in a following email soon.

“Tiny Machines, Big Tasks”

Date: 9th January 2016

Time: 10:30 am to 12:30 pm

Venue: Conference Hall, First Floor, PDPIAS Building, CHARUSAT, Changa

About Dr. Roop Mallik:

Dr. Roop Mallik is a PhD in condensed matter physics. He is currently an associate professor in TIFR, Mumbai and works on Biological Physics. He is interested in force generation by nanoscale molecules called Motor proteins which generate tiny forces to power many biological processes (e.g. for you to move your hand). In these situations, many motors must work collectively in large teams. His lab uses laser light to measure this collective force inside living cells with the precision of a single motor's force. Dr. Mallik was awarded the prestigious SS Bhatnagar award in 2014 for his outstanding research work in biological science.

Tiny Machines, Big Tasks:

Much of biological motion is driven by nanoscale enzymes called "Motor" proteins. A motor burns chemical energy to initialize a nanometre-scale deformation inside the cells of your body, and then amplifies it using a lever mechanism. Tiny forces can thereby be generated to do useful work (such as moving your hand, batting your eyelids etc.). I will give a brief introduction to how these Motor proteins work. It is quite remarkable that nanometre-scale motion of many such individual motors can collectively yield deformations on the scale of metres. How does collective function of tens/hundreds of motors emerge from the single-molecule properties of a motor? It appears that certain motors are specially adapted to work in large teams, but others are not. We will discuss the fascinating choices that Nature makes in design of these Motor proteins.

Biography

Dr. Roop Malik is an Associate Professor at the Department of Biological Sciences, Tata Institute of Fundamental Research. He studies Molecular motors transport material within the cell. These mechanochemical enzymes generate forces of the order of pico-Newtons. Their function is important for the overall organization of the cell. Optical trap based single-molecule in vitro measurements with purified motors have revealed the force, step size and other properties of their motion. However, these measurements are done under artificial conditions. We are working to extend such measurements inside living cells, where several motors with inclination to walk in different directions are simultaneously active on a single cargo. The goal is to understand how the net activity of these motors is regulated to achieve useful directed transport.

Biophysics of molecular motor complexes.

Date: 27-July-2015

Venue: Conference Hall, PDPIAS

Expert: Professor A. P. Mishra

Seminar topic: Chemistry at interphase with biology

Category: Skill development, research methodology, interdisciplinary research

Number of participants: 61 students, 5 research scholars, 33 faculty members (total = 99)

An expert lecture/seminar was delivered by Professor A. P. Mishra, Professor, Department of Chemistry, H. S. Gaur Central University, Sagar, Madhya Pradesh. Professor Mishra specialises in synthesis and characterization of novel chemical compounds, their derivatives and their application in field of Biology.

Dr. Mishra gave an interesting talk on how the knowledge of Chemical Sciences should be explored for potential applications in the field of Biology. He discussed about the synthesis of some bioactive Schiff bases and their metal chelates for application as antibacterial. He highlighted his research work with Schiff bases salicylidene-2-aminophenol (H₂SAPh), furfurylidene-N-phenylthiourea (FNPTU) and salicylidene-N-phenylthiourea and their complex with metals such as cobalt (II), Nickel (II) and Copper (II). He emphasised on the need for new molecules with potential applications as antibacterials. Dr. Mishra gave a detailed account of various preliminary, secondary and confirmatory tests and analysis his team carried out before considering a molecule for potential applications. Dr. Mishra discussed about his vision of finding potential drugs for some of the very dangerous infections like tuberculosis. He shared that the interdisciplinary research in Physics, Chemistry and Biology will hold the key for seeking solutions to many of the current problems.

Dr. Mishra thanked all the audience and concluded his lecture by briefing about his ongoing work on chlorophenol Schiff bases and derivatives. After the lecture, students, research students and faculty were given a chance to interact with Professor Mishra.

After that was conducted work session in three groups. In each group 6-6 student & 1 group of faculty member. In a group sir guide us how to formulate research question practically. We assigned to formulate research question on descriptive survey research design.

In that sir explains following subtopics in that session.....

- ❖ PICOT element analysis
- ❖ Factor influencing research questions
- ❖ Common strategies used in clinical research procedure
- ❖ Good research and how it should be?

At the end of this discussion all group made questions which are,

- Group 1:- A study to assess level of depression of above 60 years in selected old age home.
- Group 2:- What is the prevalence rate of malnutrition among under five years in urban area of change.

Day-2:-

On the second day of session at 10:00 am, sir discussed about methodology. He was conducted a work session after the discussion. He was explained about quantitative and randomize control trial research. Sir was discussed in every group separately and guided to do group activity. The members of groups involved attentively in activity and proceed to decide methodology and taught us about methodology and RCT research. In the morning session, sir was conducted whole work session. We gained a lot of knowledge and skill to how to decide methodology for the research.

Sir was assigned to task to every group, so, everyone have practical exposure to do quantitative and RCT research. We selected a one research question, decided to do work on it in the particular time period. All members were actively involved in the session.

In afternoon session around 2:00 pm, sir discussed about research proposal. He was explained about how to write research proposal and given guidelines about criteria to be followed in writing research proposal. He was discussed main areas of research proposal in this session as below:

- Title of the study
- Introduction and background of study
- Need for study
- Review of literature
- Methodology
- Ethical considerations
- Resources

Conclusions:- These all subtopics were explained by the sir in detail. We come to know that how to write research proposal and it gives us clear cut idea about research proposal.

The session was very interesting and useful for the study. Sir was solved out over doubts and then session was completed by around 4:00 pm.

DAY-3

26/11/2015

Our session started at 9:45 am. With the topic of systemic review workshop in this we studied

- Definition:-

Systemic review can be defined as rigorous and systematic search selection, appraisal, synthesis and summary of finding of primary research studies in order to answer a specific question.

- Difference between primary research and systemic research

Primary research	Systemic research
Choose topic & formulate a questions, objectives or hypothesis for which data are to be collected .	Choose topic, formulate a questions, objectives or hypothesis in order to begun a systemic review.
Select the sample or population and study sites.	Select database & set inclusive and exclusive criteria for selection of studies.
Choose data collection methods (questioners ,interview ,observation)	Search the literature & relevant value of reliable information & collect data from articles using checklist.
Analyse the collected data.	Analyse & synthesis the findings of selected (methodologically sound) studies.
Draw conclusion from analysed data.	Draw conclusion from funding of review.

At 10:30a .m.

We studied about the method of systemic review known as Meta-analysis.it has been defined as mathematical synthesis of result of 2 or more primary studies that address the same hypothesis in same way. Meta-analysis is in term is normally used to describe process of combining and summarizing the statistical findings of number of clinical trials. Meta-synthesis putting all together and meta- ethnography are terms that have been used interchangeably to describe the techniques or methods used to search, appraise and synthesis the findings of qualitative studies.

12:15-1:00pm break time

We continued our session with the steps of or process of systemic review.

1. Formulate or select question, aims, objectives or hypothesis.
2. Define term(outcome population, interview)
3. Set inclusive and exclusive criteria.
4. Select the evidence.
5. Select items to review.

6. Appraise the evidence.
7. Synthesis the evidence.
8. Concluded and make recommendation.

On the basis of which we can review an appraisal checklist

- Review appraisal checklist
 1. Are the questions for the review clearly stated?
 2. Are the terms or concept operationally defined? This will help you to decide whatever you understand the terms used in review question
 3. What is inclusive and exclusive criteria's? This has implication for the generalisation of the findings.
 4. What data base other resources where assessed?
 5. What terms were used in search? Are they adequate?
 6. How were the terms (studies) in the review appraised?
 7. How was the evidence combined and summarized?
 8. What was conclusion?
 9. What were limitations of the review?
 10. Overall collect the findings of the review.

The group participation was well with various doubt raised and Dr. Kader sir clarified our all questions.

By this we end our session at 4:00 pm.
